

There's no doubt that wood has an unbeatable appearance.

Wood has been used since time immemorial for all kinds of outdoor applications, but its capricious nature and individuality call for the necessary workmanship and skill.

A love for the trade, modern production methods and an eye for fine design are the elements underpinning the firm's constant pursuit of long-lasting quality.

Of course we work with modern machines and techniques to manufacture the rough wood to the desired sizes. However, the production process remains labour intensive because the assembly and finishing are done by hand. This gives every product its unique character.

We only work with sustainable types of wood, from oak to padouk and iroko – the choice of wood being determined by the required technical properties or the appearance. Under the effects of sun and rain all types of wood take on their beautiful natural silvery-grey tone. We also offer the possibility of the wood being painted in the RAL colour of your choice.

Everything starts with an idea

Whether these ideas come from you or from Out-Standing, they are treated with the same sense of proportion and eye for detail.

Everything is manufactured by an experienced team in the company's own workshop in Belgium. The skilful joiners have the necessary knowledge of material and techniques, which they bring to bear every day in their pursuit of the finest quality. This expertise also provides the necessary flexibility to transform every idea into a handsome end result.
